Information about General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR)

We may be collecting and using information from you if you are from the European Economic Area (EEA), and in this section of our Privacy Policy we are going to explain exactly how and why this data is collected, and how we maintain this data under protection from being replicated or used in the wrong way.

What is GDPR? GDPR is an EU-wide privacy and data protection law that regulates how EU residents' data is protected by companies and enhances the control the EU residents have over their personal data. The GDPR is relevant to any globally operating company and not just the EU-based businesses and EU residents. Our customers' data is important irrespective of where they are located, which is why we have implemented GDPR controls as our baseline standard for all our operations worldwide.

What is personal data? Any data that relates to an identifiable or identified individual. GDPR covers a broad spectrum of information that could be used on its own, or in combination with other pieces of information, to identify a person.

Personal data extends beyond a person's name or email address. Some examples include financial information, political opinions, genetic data, biometric data, IP addresses, physical address, sexual orientation, and ethnicity.

The Data Protection Principles include requirements such as:

- Personal data collected must be processed in a fair, legal, and transparent way and should only be used in a way that a person would reasonably expect.
- Personal data should only be collected to fulfil a specific purpose and it should only be used for that purpose. Organizations must specify why they need the personal data when they collect it.
- Personal data should be held no longer than necessary to fulfil its purpose.
- People covered by the GDPR have the right to access their own personal data. They can also request a copy of their data, and that their data be updated, deleted, restricted, or moved to another organization.

Why is GDPR important? GDPR adds some new requirements regarding how companies should protect individuals' personal data that they collect and process. It also raises the stakes for compliance by increasing enforcement and imposing greater fines for breach. Beyond these facts it is simply the right thing to do. At Autonym, we strongly believe that your data privacy is very important, and we already have solid security and privacy practices in place that go beyond the requirements of this new regulation.

Individual Data Subject's Rights - Data Access, Portability and Deletion

We are committed to helping our customers meet the data subject rights requirements of GDPR. Autonym processes or stores all personal data in fully vetted, DPA compliant vendors.

On our app, we store only your 8 last selfies in an AWS S3 collection bucket (private) that are used for matchmaking when you login again and validate your authentication, and your last selfie is also used as your profile picture, to guarantee to your contacts that it is you and not someone else. With normal use, your 8 selfies will be stored for a maximum of 8 days. After 8 days of usage all selfies are being replaced by 8 new ones since one selfie is taken per day which replaces the oldest one. If you are not using the app daily, the storage of your selfies may be longer and we will contact you to understand your needs if you have reached the legal limit of 60 days. If you decide to delete your account, we will discard almost immediately all your data in accordance with our Terms of Service and Privacy Policy, and we will not hold any of them.

If you are EU customers, we understand that you need to have the ability to access, update, retrieve and remove personal data if any. We got you! Our customer support team is here for you to answer any questions you might have about working with the app.
